Speaker:	Ed Glaeser
Date:	April 14, 2014
Event:	Innovation for Growth and Shared Prosperity
Running Time:	20 minutes

SUMMARY

Local externalities help foster economic growth, particularly within cities and their surrounding suburbs. In this presentation, Ed Glaeser reviews recent evidence on the spatial concentration of entrepreneurship and innovation, the rationale for the agglomeration of these activities, and the challenges and benefits of promoting agglomeration on local and national scales.
